The town of Porto Heli hosts a truly integrated community in an exclusive enclave on the shores of the Peloponnese and is built to the west of a large gulf, forming a natural port which has been in use since ancient times. The town has a wonderful assortment of local seaside taverns and restaurants. This is evident in the architecture and the micro social environment of its people. Porto Heli is one of the most exclusive vacation areas in Greece (often referred to as the Greek Riviera), favored by privileged and discerning Athenian families, royals and Greek shipping heirs.
